We had a good turnout today, but, again, no guests. Anytime we exceed our guaranteed minimum of 22 eaters is good. Sidney Sandridge gave the prayer and led us in the pledge of allegiance. Pres. Jim Roe praised Essay Contest chairman Jack Fauble for a job well done. However, Jack was quick to extend the plaudits to Fabiani and Byrom. Jim asked that the winners be invited to the YAW (Youth Appreciation Week) Banquet, and possibly read their essays. Pres. Jim encouraged members to attend the Oratorical Contest Saturday, March 12, at 9:00am, at the ORC.

Next he called on Bob Martin for a nominating committee report on their recommended slate of Officers and Directors for 2011/2012. Be prepared to vote at our 3/17 business meeting. Floor nominations are not excluded. Bob's report follows:

Tom Casteel introduced today's speaker, space scientist and science fiction novelist Stephanie Osborn. Stephanie holds math and science credentials from Vanderbilt and other prestigious schools. She has 20 years experience in engineering and science, but currently devotes her time to writing.

An event occurred (The Shuttle Columbia Disaster) that had a major impact on her career. She had in hand for about a year her first draft of her first novel, and she read part of it to us. It was uncanny how her writing described in detail what happened. She thought about not continuing with the book project, but instead decided to pursue writing full-time.

She found it not easy breaking in as a new author, and went on to relate a very discouraging picture to anyone thinking of becoming a writer. First, she needed an agent, but this turned out to be very difficult since agents wanted to read what she had published. Overcoming this problem was a struggle, but she finally connected up with a sympathetic agent who put her in touch with an editor who discredited her work.

The agent, however, was able to help her find a less critical editor. She proceeded to distribute an e-book for comments, leading to galley proofs and an unbounded manuscript to be checked for accuracy. Finally, she published her first novel. It was well received and she now has several follow-on works which she had with her.

Jim Roe commented that he had read her first novel and highly recommends it, especially to those having NASA affiliations.

Clyde won the attendance prize – again!

Optimistic Quote of The Week

" Few things in the world are more powerful than a positive push. A smile. A world of optimism and hope. A "you can do it" when things are tough."
